EASLEY APPOINTS MEMBERS TO DOMESTIC VIOLENCE COMMISSION

RALEIGH – Gov. Mike Easley appointed four new members and reappointed one member to the North Carolina Domestic Violence Commission.

Easley appointed Lisa M. Angel of Raleigh, a partner with the Rosen Law Firm, P.A.; David L. Churchill of Greensboro, clerk of superior court for Guilford County; Kathryn Elizabeth Moracco of Durham, research assistant professor for the Department of Maternal and Child Health at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill; and Anne M. Tompkins of Charlotte, assistant United States Attorney for the Western district of North Carolina.

Easley reappointed Peggy E. Goodman of Greenville, associate professor for the Department of Emergency Medicine at the Brody School of Medicine at East Carolina University.

The North Carolina Domestic Violence Commission must assess statewide needs related to domestic violence, assure that necessary services, policies and programs are provided to those in need, and coordinate and collaborate with the NC Council for Women in strengthening the existing domestic violence programs. The board is funded through the Domestic Violence Center fund and works to establish new domestic violence programs in North Carolina. The board has 39 members, and the Governor appoints nine members. Each member serves a two-year term.
